When money is tight, you may find yourself going through your finances to decide which services to keep and which ones to cut. Listed below are three yearly maintenance appointments that are essential to the health and well being of your home and your family.

Pest Control

Don't wait for pesky little critters to invade your home and your life. A preventative appointment with a pest control specialist can save you time, money, and heartache.

The damage that can be done by initially unnoticed pests, such as termites and carpenter ants, can be structurally damaging to your home and can put your family's health at risk. When you schedule a yearly appointment with a pest control company, you'll be sure to catch any pest invasions before they become a serious issue.

Plumbing

Extend the life of your appliances, decrease your home water bill, and prevent major plumbing emergencies all when you set up an annual maintenance appointment with a plumber.

Improper water pressure, unseen leaks, and unnoticed clogs can lead to a major plumbing emergencies or unforeseen appliance repairs. Keep your home's plumbing running smoothly by keeping your yearly plumbing appointment.

During a plumbing maintenance appointment, an experienced plumber will check all piping, valves, and water-using appliances. Leaks and erosion that are caught in the early stages can be fixed easily and for much less than an emergency appointment would cost you. You will also save money on your water bill by ensuring your appliances are using just the right amount of water to do their jobs.

Heating and Cooling

Emergency HVAC repairs can be costly and time consuming. A yearly maintenance check from an HVAC company will keep your heating and cooling systems running efficiently.

An annual maintenance check will include servicing of all heating and cooling equipment in your home. Thermostats will be checked, all filters will be changed, and coils, fans, and other HVAC components will be cleaned or replaced. A knowledgeable HVAC technician can ensure your family's safety by also checking your home for CO2 emissions and other safety issues that can be caused by a faulty HVAC system.

Keep your home happy and healthy by keeping annual appointments with the three maintenance services listed above. Aside from avoiding the costs of an emergency appointment, you may also be afforded special discounts and offers, as well as repairs and house calls at a lesser rate than those customers who don't schedule annual maintenance appointments. When funds are tight, it's important to keep these three maintenance appointments in your annual rotation.
